

Hello and thank you for visiting the MAI Career Coaching website.

My name is Mike Israelite. I recently completed a rewarding career in the banking and insurance industries.

As I reflect on my corporate career, it is clear that my greatest periods of career growth were driven by primarily two things. First, business circumstances provided me challenges that helped me learn about myself and to demonstrate my ability to perform in positions of greater accountability. Second, and in many ways more importantly, my career growth was driven by the people who took the time to coach and mentor me through the inevitable peaks and valleys that occur over the course of our working lives.

I have now turned the page on the working in a large and complex organization chapter of my career and have begun my next chapter doing what I enjoy the most. That being coaching people as they navigate through their career journey. That is why I am thrilled to devote my energy to MAI Career Coaching.

Coaching has been a passion of mine since early adulthood. I coached girls and boys' youth sports before I had children of my own. I then coached my children's teams in their sports until they began to play at more elite levels.

In my business career I have had the privilege to coach and mentor hundreds of team members and colleagues. It is gratifying to see so many of them now enjoying success in positions they aspired to during their career. Knowing I played some small role in their success gives me great personal satisfaction.

MAI Career Coaching's focus is to help early and mid career people achieve whatever level of success they aspire to.

If you believe you can benefit by having a coach who will help you identify your short and long term career goals, develop plans to achieve your goals, and provide the structure and discipline to execute your career plan, then MAI Career Coaching may be the right choice for you.

Please contact us via the link below to schedule a free half-hour consultation during which we will explore whether we can develop a mutually rewarding business relationship.

Thank you again for taking the time to visit the MAI Career Coaching website.

At MAI Career Coaching, "Our passion is coaching and your success is our goal".
